

Bio – Samantha Shintay

Samantha Shintay is the Account Executive for the Southeastern United States at Hohenstein Institute America. In this role, she builds collaborative relationships with companies all along the textile supply chain through Hohenstein’s testing services and the OEKO-TEX® System.

Prior to joining Hohenstein in 2019, Sam managed and improved RSL & Green Chemistry programs, RSL sampling criteria and testing traceability at Nike. She also helped develop Nike’s Material Sustainability Index, of which a version was the basis for HIGG index.

After Nike, Sam provided research and consulting services at HSR Sustainability, LLC, focusing on textile chemistry in the apparel and footwear industry.

Samantha holds a BS in Polymer & Color Chemistry from North Carolina State University.
